Prof. Harald Kittler

MD

As a senior physician and research team leader at the Department of Dermatology, Medical University of Vienna, Austria, Prof. Harald Kittler has made significant contributions to the realms of skin imaging and the application of artificial intelligence in skin cancer diagnosis.

His roles as an editor and reviewer for prestigious journals, combined with his active involvement in leading dermatological societies, highlight his profound impact on this field.

Prof. Kittler's dedication to education shines through his authorship, engaging lectures, and his role in coordinating dermatology courses, for which he has received recognition for teaching excellence.

Clinically, he has led units dedicated to the early detection and treatment of skin cancer, along with specialized areas such as dermatopathology.
